THE TERRITORIES.

The Waldron troupe had played their way to Silver City at last accounts.

Seven more newspapers will be started in Utah inside of the next six months.

The ship Col. Adams sailed from Port Blakely on the 18th for Callao with 1,000,000 feet of lumber.

It is rumored that a Company with a capital of $3,000,000 have purchased the coal mines at Seattle.

The wife of a Mr. Robinson died at Seattle last week, from cerebro spinal meningitis or spotted fever.

Secretary Struve is having the Capitol at Olympia put in good condition for the reception of the Legislature this fall.

The Directors of the Seattle School District have let the contract for building two new school houses, to cost $2,500.

The Port Townsend Argus is probably published nearer the North Pole than any other paper in the United States.

H. H. Holt has been appointed City Assessor of Kalama, and Chas. Stockton chosen Supervisor of Streets and Roads.

George A. Smith, the distinguished pilgrim to the holy land, has again landed on American soil, and is now wending his way to his harems in Zion.

The bark Scotland which arrived at Seattle on the 13th inst., brought from San Francisco sixty cases of ordnance consigned to the Governor of Washington Territory.

Hon. N. P. Jacobs, of Detroit, Mich., has taken up his residence at Kalama, where he will act as Land Commissioner of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

A sailor named Kelly was rescued from a watery grave at Olympia last week after he had sunk three times. When brought on shore the first thing he said to his rescuers was: "Be Jasus, what am I going to do to ye for pulling me hair so?"

The Kalama Beacon says: "Six miles of iron have been taken to the front, which will reach from Tenino across the Deschutes, where the first bridge on the extension is to be erected as soon as the iron is laid to that point."

The Corinne Reporter tells of a chicken in that place "with two feet where the tail ought to be, besides two feet which are in their proper place, making in all four feet, three legs and no tail." Boarders at some of our hotels say the chickens here are "all legs and wings."

On Saturday, at the Land Office in Olympia, 450,000 feet of saw logs were sold. Mr. Frank Tarbell bought 300,000 feet, at 25 cents a thousand for the logger, and Gen. Stevens bought the remainder at 50 cents a thousand, for the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

Seattle's celebration of the "glorious Fourth" this year promises to be somewhat of the ridiculous order. In the programme of exercises we notice "grand parade of horribles," "climbing greased poles," "foot race," "jumping match," "catching greased hog," "sack race," etc.

The "Great West" may be better appreciated from the following statistics: There are eleven Territories, two or three of which are twice or three times as large as all of New England. Colorado is thirteen times as large as Massachusetts, while Dakota and Arizona are half as large again as Colorado. The eleven Territories contain over one billion and a quarter acres, exceeding by nearly two hundred thousand square miles the aggregate territory of all the present admitted States of the Union. The Territory of Alaska contains 369,529,600 acres.

The Port Townsend Argus has the following bear story: "A young man, George Pitman, in the employ of Mr. James Nichols, on his farm at Scow Bay, observed three large bears in a clover field near the house. He had a double barreled shot gun loaded with shot, and on the top of the charges he hastily dropped extra bullets and started for the field. His first shot killed one of the bears. The other two scrambled into some brush, and after waiting half an hour one of them returned, and Pitman shot him also. One of the bears, after his hide was removed, weighed 200 pounds. This is doing pretty well for a young man recently come to the country, and being all alone in the woods."

The Olympia Tribune learns from the owners of the Utsalady mill that the mill is running full time, night and day, turning out lumber at a great rate. The depression in the local coast trade doesn't affect the Utsalady mill as some others, the trade at present being almost entirely with foreign ports and largely British. At present there are five vessels loading there, to-wit: American ship Washington Libby, for Melbourne, Australia, carrying about 800,000 feet of lumber; British ship Tokatea, 1,000 tons, for China, with spars; American barkentine C. S. Taylor, for New Zealand, with 300,000 feet of lumber; American barkentine Amelia, for Australia, with 400,000 feet of lumber; and the company's bark Onward, for San Francisco.

The Beacon grows enthusiastic over the prospects of the "terminus question being soon settled." It says: "Judge Rice, Resident Vice President and Capt. J. C. Ainsworth, N. P. R. R. Director, at a late meeting of the N. P. Board, were appointed by the Directory as Commissioners to locate the N. P. R. R. terminus on Puget Sound! On yesterday (22d), the Commissioners, accompanied by Gen. Sprague, passed by special train to Tenino, intending to proceed without halt to Olympia, where a steamer was in readiness to receive them and depart down the Sound on business. In the course of eight or ten days the stakes will be planted for the future second city of the American continent! Let doubters and laggards stand aside—the whistle blows!—the train of progress is off! The commerce that builded Cadmus and Alexandria has sought and found a new route, and its center of radiation will be where the N. P. Commissioners decide this week!"

Mr. Plimsoll's Case.—The Boston Advertiser says the philanthropist Samuel Plimsoll, finding his credit impaired by the failure of many of his charges, is losing his temper as well. The Parga of London, one of the ships detained upon his complaint for judicial proceedings, was, after full investigation found perfectly sea-worthy, and the owner was acquitted. The counsel for the owner applied to Mr. Plimsoll for the source of his information and compensation for his loss, to which the philanthropist, being a member of Parliament and secure from prosecution, made the following reply:

"Sir: Yours of the 22d inst. is to hand. I will not give the name of my informant. I will make no apology. And as to compensation, the only compensation due to your clients, and all other ship-owners who send unseaworthy vessels to sea with men a thousand times better than themselves on board, is in my opinion a halter a-piece, and the offices of the hangman! Do your worst!

"SAMUEL PLIMSOLL."

The Plimsoll sensation is on its last legs. There is nothing like a fair trial to confound a false witness. The royal commission is still prosecuting the investigation demanded by the ship-owning interest to his sweeping charges, and it is the general impression that the evidence so far presented does not support his case.

Small-pox still prevails in Washington City.

LATEST FROM THE FRONT!

YREKA, June 24.—H. J. Diggles has just arrived from Fort Klamath, having left there at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. He reports all quiet at the Fort. All the troops, except Mendenhall's command, were at Klamath. His command was at the peninsula. The troops were all in good health and spirits. The weather on Sunday morning was very cold, and the ground was covered with snow. Mr. Diggles also reports that two armed Modocs came to Anderson's place on the Klamath from the mountains this morning to get some flour, and then went back.

OREGON.

Forty persons were received into full membership by the Rev. S. Bowers of the Salem M. E. Church last Sabbath.

The Hyland Farmers' Club of Marion county will discuss at its next meeting the question of the repeal of the Specific Contract Law of Oregon.

The body of a colored lad named George Williams who was drowned at Salem last winter, was found in a pile of drift wood near Lincoln on last Monday.

The rush of men from the Dalles to the Ochoco mines has left the town without the necessary supply of mechanics and laborers to carry on the improvements in progress.

The viewers of the proposed road from Cole's Valley to Roseburg, report that they do not deem the proposed road of sufficient importance to the county to recommend the opening of it.

A colored barber named Samuel Johnson was found dead in the rear of his shop at Salem last Monday morning. The verdict of the coroner's jury was, that he died from rupture of a blood vessel. He had been drinking excessively the day before.

Green C. Davidson is out in a "card" in the Statesman in which he offers to bet $1,000 with Rev. J. L. Parrish that Joseph Thomas or "Wrestling Joe" will not be proven to be his, Green C.'s father. "It's a wise child that knows its own father," says the old proverb.

Letter from Baker County.

BAKER CITY, June 20, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Leaving Baker City on Tuesday morning last in a drizzling rain storm, mounted upon the main deck of a sturdy little pony of a raven hue, I proceeded on my way to Yantis' Ranch. Eighteen miles from Baker, brought me to Low's Ranch. This is one of the best stock ranches in the country, located on a a small stream tributary to Burnt river. The ranch contains quite a quantity of arable land, and a fine, thrifty young orchard of fruit trees, shrubbery, etc. Passing rapidly by the numerous thrifty ranches on the river, at 8 P. M. arrived at "Yantis'," formerly known as Miller's Ranch. Here, after a good supper, I enjoyed a comfortable sleep in a clean, nice bed. Mr. Yantis informed me that

OLD "WINNEMUCCA"

Was just across Snake river luxuriating in the tall bunch grass. The old fellow is perfectly friendly, but says after his death, look out—he then cannot answer for the good conduct of his braves.

Next morning, after a frugal breakfast, I retraced my way up Burnt river to the old

"SCOTT RANCH,"

There being joined by the present owner, Mr. Joe Jett. Jett has a nice peach orchard and a fine garden spot. We forded Burnt river and traveled up Dixie Creek to Rye Valley, passing the spot where Mr. Scott and his wife were killed by the noble red men in 1867. Mr. Scott, his wife and two children, were returning home from Rye Valley. When within a few miles of their home they were suddenly fired upon from a dense thicket. Scott fell forward on his face mortally wounded. Mrs. Scott, with great presence of mind seized the reins, and as she did so, a tall Indian stepped out into the road and fired upon her, the ball passing through her body, mortally wounding her, the gun being so close to her that she could touch it. Not knowing of her mortal hurt, and thinking only of saving her husband and little ones, the brave woman drove on and succeeded in guiding the frightened team for three or four miles, until she arrived near their home, got out, let down a pair of bars, but before she arrived at the second bars was unable, or too faint, to move. Some men working at the ranch saw them, and brought them to the house. Scott died that night, and Mrs. Scott lived until the next day. The two children escaped unhurt. This is a poor account of only one of the many terrible tragedies enacted in this county by the poor, persecuted Indians! As Jett and myself passed by the spot I shuddered and peered anxiously about, fearing some friendly Lo might be lurking around to gently lift our hair.

MINING CAMPS.

At Rye Valley I remained but a short time, visited all the mining camps, Humboldt Basin, Amelia, Malheur, El Dorado, and found them all dull and quiet. Where the best ground is there will be found the least water. Being on a hurried business trip I cannot post you fully. I returned home on Thursday evening, found Baker without change, and things going along smoothly. Report says E. M. White & Co.'s new found gold ledge, near Gem City, is paying $75 per ton free gold. White and Captain Myrick are hard at work. Their old friends wish them well.

Rain and thunder to-day. Some little horse racing excitement, and the Masonic fraternity are preparing for their celebration.

The Finest Church in America.—St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Fifth avenue and Fifty-first and Fifty-second street, and extending back to Madison avenue, will be the finest church structure not alone in New York, but in the Western World. Begun in 1858 by Archbishop Hughes, all work was suspended from the outbreak of the war to the beginning of 1864; then it was resumed, and the grand building, occupying the entire block, is now about half finished. Enormous granite blocks constitute its foundations. On there rises the graceful yet grand superstructure of the cathedral, which is constructed all of fine marble. With its rich decorations, its rose windows, its lines of foliated tracery, its clustering Gothic pinnacles, its wealth of ornament, and, most of all, its lofty twin spires, piercing the sky at a hight above everything else in New York, it closely resembles the world famous cathedral at Cologne. It will be the largest, the costliest and the most beautiful church in the United States—its total cost exceeding $2,000,000. Everything in its construction is paid for before it is used. The towers at the corner will be 328 feet high. The church itself, built in pure white marble, the most beautiful of all material for such a structure, will present a most graceful and harmonious mapping of outlines, and a world of columns, capitals and ornamental tracery. Across the front gable, over the entrance, there will extend a row of niches, with statues of saints and martyrs seven and a half feet high. Above this will be a large rose or circular window, twenty-six feet in diameter—"a splendid blossom of Gothic tracery, with one hundred shafts of marble radiating from the center, and holding triangular pieces of painted glass." Toward the construction of this grandest and most beautiful of American church edifices all the Catholic churches in New York contribute. It will probably be finished four years hence, or in seventeen years of actual working time, allowing for suspension during the great part of the war. Similar churches in Europe were hundreds of years in building.

Richard Grant White defines a philologist as "a man who, horsed upon Grimm's Law, chases the evasive syllable over umlauts and ablauts into the faintly echoing recesses of the Himalayas." Which sounds quite as well, if it be not quite as intelligible, as the familiar sneer that a philologist is one to whom the vowels are of no consequence and the consonants of very little.

EASTERN DATES TO JUNE 24.

WASHINGTON CITY.

To be Hanged.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Indian Agent of the Nez Perces reports that Pickett, who killed an Indian woman last September, has been convicted and sentenced to be hanged at Boise City, on the 25th of July. This is the first instance where a white man has been brought to justice for killing Indians in this Territory. The Nez Perces are remarkably quiet, notwithstanding the reports of their hostile intentions.

An Influential Female.

A Washington special to the Tribune says the investigation which followed the passage of the Montana war claims, in the Treasury Department, uncovers some of the operations of an old Indian ring. It is alleged that some time since, M. H. Insley desirous of securing an Indian contract, sought the influence of Mrs. Anna Sackett, mother-in-law of the late Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Parker. A contract was secured in addition to the appointment obtained for Insley to proceed with goods and take charge of their distribution. For service thus performed by Mrs. Sackett, Insley paid her in Montana war claims to the amount near $11,000. Mrs. Sackett made a verbal statement to the Controller, stating that she performed valuable services in obtaining the passage of the law by Congress recognizing the validity of the Montana Indian war claims. Her counsel makes the same statement in her behalf and interest. It is also alleged she procured an appointment in the Indian Department through her son-in-law, Col. Parker, at that time Commissioner.

Statement Called For.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Comptroller of Currency has called for a statement of the condition of National Banks at the close of business on Friday, June 13th.

Gaugers' Bills.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Five hundred and ninety-eight gaugers' bills for May, under the new schedule for fees, show the average earnings to be $4 93 per day. Gaugers in cities earning, generally, $6 per day. In rural districts traveling expenses were paid in addition. There are usually about seven hundred bills each month, or that many gaugers employed.

Karl V[illegible], the alleged murderer of Baron De Bonde, is held for extradition to Belgium.

The Woodhull Trial.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The United States Circuit Court was engaged to-day in impanelling a jury for the trial of Tennie C. Claflin and Victoria Woodhull. The Judge refused a postponement of the trial to [illegible] of the alleged sickness of one of the defendants.

Billiard Match.

NEW YORK, June 23.—An International billiard tournament for the championship of the world at a three ball game, commenced to-night in Irving Hall. The first game, between Cyrille Dion and John Deery, was played in the presence of one of the largest and most select audiences ever seen in New York. The game was won by Dion in thirty-two innings. The second game, between Francis Ubassy and Maurice Daly, was the event of the evening, Daly winning the game, and Ubassy standing 253. They played thirty-nine innings.

Warrants for Officials.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Warrants for the arrest of the late ring officials recently indicted have been placed in the hands of Superintendent Matsell, and will probably be served to-day.

After the Polaris.

The Juniata will sail to-day in search of the Polaris. She is manned by 130 men, carries two light guns, 361 tons of coal and an abundance of provisions, as it is intended she shall supply both the Polaris, if found, and the Tigress, which will follow the Juniata till July 4th, besides her own launch, which carries 35 men. The Juniata carries a large steam launch for 70 men, all parts of which are duplicated, so that a second may be constructed if necessary. The Juniata will stop at St. John's for coal on her way to Disco, where it is expected the Polaris or tidings of her, will be found.

Sanitary Precautions.

The Board of Health is busy providing against the visit of the cholera. The streets are being disinfected, occupants of damp cellars are compelled to find less unhealthy homes, owners of houses occupied by the poorer classes are instructed to abate existing nuisances, and take precautions against the occurrence of others.

Tobacco House Burned.

CINCINNATI, June 24.—The [illegible] tobacco warehouse in Covington, Ky., with 500 hogsheads of tobacco, was burned last night. Loss, $50,000; insured for $40,000.

The Parricide's Trial Began.

NEW YORK, June 24.—The trial of young Walworth for shooting his father was commenced in the Court of Oyer and Terminer to-day. The court-room was crowded. The mother and two younger brothers of the defendant sat near him; also Rev. Mr. Bockhouse, husband of a sister of Mrs. Walworth, and several other friends.

Counterfeiter Pardoned.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Col. Robert B. Clark, a well known officer, who made a good record during the war, convicted in this district the 21st of January, 1871, of having in his possession counterfeit plates for printing Internal Revenue stamps and sentenced to five years in the Albany prison, has been pardoned by President Grant.

Business is greatly improved.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The Board of Supervisors last night sustained Mayor Alvord's veto of the Chinese Pig tail ordinance. Supervisor King read a written speech in which he denounced the proposed order in unmeasured terms as contrary to law and the ordinary principles of Christianity and decency. Mr. Menzies gave as his reason for sustaining the veto, "that the order was too sweeping in terms and if passed over the veto could not be enforced." Mr. Shrader considered it mere sanitary regulations with which [illegible] law and National treaties had nothing to do. He would [illegible] vote against the veto. The veto was finally sustained. Supervisor Forbes introduced a resolution directing the clerk to expunge the order from the records of the Board as being unworthy of a Christian community of Christian Nations. His resolution was indefinitely postponed.

Isaac Coveley killed himself or was accidentally shot near Black Point yesterday in the engine room of the distillery. He was found with his brains blown out and a shotgun lying across his body. His friends believe his death accidental.

The Patrons of Husbandry.

Various are the opinions expressed through the journals on the other side of the continent as well as through those on this side in regard to the propriety of the farmers forming themselves into a secret organization for the protection of their class. It will be found, however, that in a large majority of cases the journals expressing these different opinions, follow the dictates of the different interests they respectively represent or advocate so closely that it would be quite possible to predict beforehand the position any given journal would take on this question from a knowledge of its position on the great question now agitating American society—the people against the monopoly, equality against privilege. There are some exceptional instances in which anti-monopoly journals discourage the formation of those societies, but these are rare indeed, and we cannot call to mind a single case of a paper, heretofore recognized as belonging to the monopoly side of the controversy, that does not disapprove of the farmers' societies.

Since the rise of the order of the Patrons of Husbandry, it cannot be disputed that the agricultural interests of the country have been guarded with much greater strictness and carefulness than before, so far as the action of the agricultural classes themselves could effect that result. The order has grown with such astonishing rapidity that, although it is of very recent origin, its granges are already in every State and almost every county of the Union. And as a consequence of this, in connection with the general agitation of the subjects directly bearing upon the welfare of the producers of the country, we find the politicians, who always snuff the battle from afar, wheeling into line and paying deference in their political conventions to the claims of the farmers.

A good deal more importance is attached, both by the friends of the order and by its opposers, to the fact of its secrecy, than that fact alone is entitled to. This we think is true of nearly all secret societies. They are little better or worse than they would be if they were not secret. It is quite possible that the order of Husbandry would be equally as efficient without the element of secrecy. But secret or open, it is accomplishing a great work. It is bringing about a better understanding among the farmers. It is securing unity of method, which is the one thing needful to the farmers in their endeavors to protect themselves against the exactions of the monopolies. It is securing co-operation in all the efforts of the producers to resist the extortions of the middle men. In short, it is enabling the farmers to meet the carriers, armed as they are armed, and organized as they are organized. If it is possible for the producing classes to work with such harmony of purpose and unity of plans, as to make themselves equal to the struggles of commerce to the classes who have interests antagonistic to theirs, this organization ought to prove that fact.

Still in the Courts.

It has been a number of years since the Southern Confederacy collapsed, but it has not yet got out of the courts. Every little while we see a notice of some question being up for decision that arose directly out of the war for the suppression of the rebellion. A case of this sort is now in the United States Circuit Court for Massachusetts, wherein the plaintiff, G. B. Lanear, claims that the defendants, Albert G. Brown and his son, in January, 1866, with force and arms took and converted to their own use, in the State of Georgia, 1,800 bales of cotton belonging to to the plaintiff of the value of $500,000. To this complaint the defendants answer that it is true they took the cotton, but they did it as special agents of the Treasury of the United States, and that they paid over the proceeds of the sale of the cotton to the Government, and are therefore not responsible to the plaintiff. A demurrer to this defense raises the question of its sufficiency as a legal excuse for the act of the defendants, and the case is watched with considerable interest, as well by the members of the legal profession as by the numerous persons who are in the same situation as the plaintiff. General B. F. Butler is counsel for the plaintiff.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent says: "A private inquiry having been made of the Attorney-General on the following subjects, the question was referred by him to the General Land Office, and Acting-Commissioner Curtis to-day makes this statement as the rule of the Department: 'If lands have been entered and patented as agricultural, upon which valuable mines were known to exist at the date of such entry, the parties owning such mines are in no way debarred from acquiring the title thereto upon a full compliance with the laws and the instructions regulating the disposal of mineral lands; as by express provisions of law no title can be acquired to mineral land under the acts regulating the disposal of agricultural land. In all cases where lands have been returned as mineral upon the township plot, or where affidavits were filed with the local land officers, alleging that the lands are more valuable for mining than for agricultural purposes, it is the duty of the register and receiver to cause a hearing to determine their true character before allowing their entry under the Pre emption or Homestead laws.'"

The Atlantic Yacht Club of New York telegraphed to Washington City in the afternoon of the 9th instant to ascertain what would be the probable state of the weather on the morning of the 11th at which time their regatta was to come off. An answer from the chief officer of the signal service, which reached New York thirty hours before the time for the regatta, informed the club that they might set the weather down for "warm, clear, with southerly and southeasterly winds, varying from gentle to fresh." The club made preparations for the race accordingly, and when the day came the prediction were verified to the letter.

A Tennessee court lately tried, convicted and sentenced a man for the crime of murder. Just before the culprit was to expiate his crime on the gallows, the man for whose murder he was about to hang appeared on the scene of action, and expressed the most intense disgust at the reckless manner in which justice was administered in that court. The convict agrees with his supposed victim in the opinion that it is an unsafe practice to convict people of murder till somebody has been killed.

The Governor of the State of New York receives a salary of $20,000 per annum, and the Mayor of the City gets $12,000.

Straight Talk from Editors and Publishers.

The Holt county Mo Sentinel of June 13 contains a report of the proceedings of the "Missouri Editorial Convention," which convened on the 28th ultimo. The convention was composed of editors and publishers of newspapers, and was held under the auspices of the Missouri Editors' and Publishers' Association, an organization that has existed for some years. It is manifest that the members of the convention have been favored with the experience of a class of persons who are by no means confined to the State of Missouri, or even to the region lying east of the Rocky mountains. This we judge by the following resolutions which were adopted by the convention:

1. That a newspaper office is a business establishment by which editors and printers must make a living.

2. That a man has the same right to walk into a grocery store and order a barrel of sugar or a sack of coffee, or into a law office and demand a legal opinion from its occupant, or into an undertaker's and request a coffin without offering or expecting to pay for their respective wares or services, as into a newspaper office and demand the use of its brains and muscle and type without a thought of recompense.

3. That hereafter all personal or political matter having for its object the promotion of individual fortunes or ambitions, shall be treated exactly as other business matter, charged at the option of publishers as editorial advertising.

4. That dead beating, political, personal and commercial, on the Missouri press is played out.

5. That any editor or publisher who fails to carry out these resolutions in letter and in spirit shall cease to be regarded as a member of the association.

Resolutions were also adopted condemnatory of the act of Congress denying publishers of newspapers the right to exchange with each other free of postage, and requesting the repeal of the objectionable law.

It was further resolved that in dealing with advertising agencies the members of that Convention would adhere to the same rates as those allowed to other persons. From this it would appear that there has been a custom in Missouri that has not prevailed here on that particular subject. It is a very good custom to abolish.

The Convention certainly will not be accused of too much delicacy in speaking of the practice of sponging on newspapers. They could not, however, have expressed the true rule of managing a newspaper more forcibly, though they might have expressed it more elegantly than they did when they say "deadbeating" of all kinds on the press is "played out."

The Glory of Rank in England.

From a review of "The English Constitution," by Walter Bagehot, (who is pronounced by the New York Tribune "not only an author of eminent rank among financial authorities in Great Britain, but an acute and intelligent thinker") we clip the subjoined:

> The social prestige of the aristocracy is, as every one knows, immensely less than it was a hundred years or even fifty years since. Two great movements—the two greatest of modern society—have been unfavorable to it. The rise of industrial wealth in countless forms has brought in a competitor which has generally more mind, and which would be supreme were it not for awkwardness and intellectual gene. Every day our companies, our railways, our debentures, and our shares, tend more and more to multiply these surroundings of the aristocracy, and in time they will hide it. And while this undergrowth has come up, the aristocracy has come down. They have less means of standing out than they used to have. Their power is in their theatrical exhibition, in their state. But society is every day becoming less stately. As our great satirist has observed, "The last Duke of St. David's used to cover the north road with his carriages; landladies and waiters bowed before him. The present Duke sneaks away from a railway station, smoking a cigar, in a brougham." The aristocracy cannot lead the old life if they would; they are ruled by a stronger power. They suffer from a tendency of all modern society to raise the average, and to lower—comparatively, and perhaps absolutely, to lower—the summit. As the picturesqueness, the featureliness, of society diminishes, aristocracy loses the single instrument of its peculiar power.

In regard to the objection that the worship of money is as good as the worship of rank, the author remarks that grant this to be the case, it is great gain to society to have two idols, since in the competition of idolators, the true worship gets a chance. But it is not true, he maintains, that the reverence for rank is as base as the reverence for money.

> As the world has gone, manner has been half-hereditary in certain castes, and manner is one of the fine arts. It is the style of society; it is in the daily spoken intercourse of human beings what the art of literary expression is in their occasional written intercourse. In reverencing wealth we reverence not a man; in reverencing inherited nobility, we reverence the probable possession of a great faculty—the faculty of bringing out what is in one. The unconscious grace of life may be in the middle classes, finely mannered persons are born everywhere; but it ought to be in the aristocracy and a man must be born with a pitch in his nerves if he has not some of it. It is a physiological possession of the race, though it is sometimes wanting in the individual.

Horse-stealing has become so prevalent in Andrew county, Missouri, that the authorities are unable to take care of the thieves fast enough to meet the exigencies of the occasion. The citizens have therefore formed themselves into a vigilance committee for the purpose of ferreting out and bringing to justice the offenders. Upon this state of affairs a local paper mildly says the propriety of the citizens thus taking the law into their own hands is doubtful, as "it might give the impression abroad that property is not safe in this county." We should think there might be danger of such an impression getting out under the circumstances.

A man named Nicholas Monan was arrested in Texas as an accomplice in the Bender murders. He denied the charge, but when the evidence in possession of the officers was made known to him, he confessed to having taken part in that horrible series of murders. He also made known other important facts in connection with the affair, and then, at a moment when the officers in charge of him were not noticing him, he drew a small pistol from his pocket and blew out his brains with it.

The President of a company organized to build a railway nearly a thousand miles in length through a mountainous and difficult country, proposes to pass round the hat and take up a collection to get money to pay $10,000—about the cost of one-third of a mile of railway—to pay for the right of way. The reason assigned is, that "$10,000 is a very large sum for a company to pay out all at once."

The Norwegians of Madison, Wisconsin, and vicinity, among whom Mr. Ole Bull is prominent, propose to erect a monument in honor of the Norwegian discoverer, Leif Erikson, who explored the shores of America in the year 1000. Mr. Bull will devote the proceeds of concerts in this country and in Norway to this long cherished and laudable enterprise.

A Washington City daily asks: "Why should citizens at the capital of the nation, the focus of information, the center of intelligence and refinement, go elsewhere for a good journal?" Why do citizens of New York go elsewhere for theirs? Simply because they can't raise them at home.

Owning Up.

The New York Herald, which is probably the best political barometer in the United States, has evidently felt the influence of coming events. Since the second inauguration of President Grant, and until very recently, no other influential paper in the East found so much fault with his administration as the Herald. But suddenly that paper comes about and takes another tack. In the Herald of the 11th inst. appears an editorial article a column and a half in length, discussing the political situation, and all in the most friendly mood toward the present administration. There is no more sneering and raillery. Even Grant's management of the financial department of the public service, which has hereto fore been in the eyes of the Herald all that was wrong and nothing that was right, finds an apologist if not an advocate in the Herald. The next Presidential election is thus broached:

> In the absence of any important event to excite popular fervor during the next three years—of any war or foreign complications to stir up national or patriotic sentiment, or of any question of annexation, to which the people are not at present inclined, the issue of the next Presidential campaign, and of the elections preceding it, will probably turn upon the financial management of the administration. And should the administration pursue a policy satisfactory to the country, General Grant will, most likely, be able to determine the Presidential succession. He then could say, or indicate, who should be his successor. Although much remains to be done in improving the management of the national finances, and many errors of the Secretary of the Treasury to be corrected, there are some facts standing out prominently that will loom up on the credit side of the account for the administration. While we are far from that standard of economy in the expenditure of the Government which the people desire and look for, and which was characteristic of the Republic in its early history and before the late war, it must be admitted that there has been a great improvement since General Grant entered the White House. The revenue frauds and extravagance during and after the war and up to the time of his first inauguration were frightful. This arose in part, no doubt, from the prevalent corruption in and out of Congress and from the antagonism during Mr. Johnson's administration between Congress and the President, but that is no reason why we should not give General Grant's administration the credit due to it for its instrumentality in checking the evil, whether by influence over Congress or by a more vigilant control over its subordinates. There was a better collection of the revenue, less corruption and more economy, whatever the causes may have been, and the credit is properly due to the administration of General Grant. This, undoubtedly, had great influence with the conservative people of the country when they cast their votes for the President for his second term.

This is certainly a frank admission to come from a Democratic paper. No higher compliment could be paid the Republican party than that it had the discretion and patriotism to choose such a man as Grant to succeed Johnson, and again had the discretion to choose him for his own successor. Praise thus extorted from the leading opposition journal of the country is praise indeed.

Hyacinthe's Programme of Reform.

[From the Independent.]

Father Hyacinthe does not think it wise to attempt any reform of Catholic dogmas. He does not scruple to characterize some of the impositions of modern councils as "pestilential superfluities," but he thinks the time has hardly come for the reformers to enter the dogmatic sphere. For the present the thing to be attempted is to remodel the discipline of the Church, and in that sphere enough could be done to transform it altogether.

In four particulars the discipline of the Church needs revision. First, the character of auricular confession must be wholly changed. As now practiced, confession is a frightful immorality; but, it has, nevertheless, a legitimate function:

"There are certain hearts which at certain epochs of their life want a Christian education. They want to have their conscience individual, but not solitary. They have secrets which they cannot tell to every one, but which they must tell somebody. For such hearts an old man, learned in the science of this life and of the future, is a real friend and help. But the confession which I desire is the confession of souls, and not of family affairs, the confession of individuals, not of citizens or magistrates. Confession should never mean the abdication of conscience into the hands of another man."

Secondly, forced celibacy must be abolished. What Paul has so strongly commended Father Hyacinthe cannot condemn; nevertheless, the attempt to make the rule compulsory and universal is an outrage:

"I would have a priest free to contract a holy marriage when he pleases, because I wish the clergy to be moral. [Applause.] The apologists of celibacy say that its violators are the exceptions. I will not give statistics—it would be odious to do so, but I will say that it is the majority that has violated it, and only the minority which has observed it. [Loud and prolonged applause.] What I have in horror is not the marriage of a Luther, but the shameless license of a Pope named Borgia. [Renewed applause.] It is said that confession is not possible to a married priest; on the contrary, it is better. A married priest, instead of preaching the morality and mysticism proper for the cloister, would preach those proper to the domestic hearth."

In the third place, "the government of the Church must rest in its own hands," and every parish must have the right of choosing its own pastor. The privilege that the Swiss magistrates have lately given to the Catholics of that country must be the right of every Catholic Congregation.

In the fourth place, the presence of God must be restored in the building consecrated to his worship, and to this end the Scriptures and the Church services must be in the vernacular. "How," he cried, "can men be religious when they can understand nothing of what is said either of the doctrines or in the ceremonies of their worship?"

"With these things mended," said Father Hyacinthe—and in his aspirations all our best wishes join—"we may hope that our Reformed Catholic Church will spring up old as the centuries and young as the future." Our readers will see that, if his points can be carried, a tremendous revolution will be wrought in the Catholic Church. We shall know next week how far the Congress has gone in the direction which he has pointed out.

A Paris dispatch of June 13th gives the following items in relation to the persecution of the Communists:

> It is announced that the Minister of Finance will prosecute Gustave Courbet for the recovery of the sum expended by the Government in the reconstruction of the Vendome Column. M. Courbet was the chief instrument of the Commune for carrying out its decree of April 13, ordering the demolition of the Column.
>
> The Government has decided immediately to transport Henri Rochefort to New Caledonia.
>
> The demand of the military Governor of Paris for authority from the Assembly to prosecute Deputy Ranc causes profound agitation at Versailles.

A Washington special of June 13th to the Boston Advertiser says:

> The paragraph in the Associated Press dispatches to the effect that a delegation from Guatemala had called on the President to see has been accepted as a denial of the statement in these dispatches that two delegates from each of the Central American States, with the Minister, did call on the President and expressed certain views to him in regard to annexation and in regard to the encroachment of the English on certain portions of that coast. Such an interview as heretofore detailed in these dispatches did occur, and the President himself related the particulars of it to a visitor at the White House, without any reserve or imposing any obligation of secrecy.

COOS BAY AND COQUILLE RIVER.

COQUILLE CITY, June 10, 1873.

The lumbering and ship building of Coos Bay have grown quietly, steadily and successfully for the last seventeen years. Coal mining had more to contend with, but faith in its final success gave power and energy, patience and perseverance to those engaged in the business until now it is so extensive, growing so rapidly and successful as to be contending for the leading business of the Bay. The original government geological surveys and the practical mining of to-day go to establish Coos Bay and its surroundings—extending twenty miles long by ten miles broad—to be one of the great coal fields of the Pacific coast. One or more great enterprises, when successfully established, soon lead to others.

Two companies are organized and competing for building a

SHIP CANAL

To connect the waters of Coquille river with Coos bay, by way of the Beaver and Isthmus Sloughs, that will be about six miles long. This canal was suggested by the difficulties connected with the bar at the mouth of the river. If the canal is built, it will be of vast importance for developing the agricultural and lumbering interests of Coquille river and its forks, extending a hundred miles, and for increasing the shipping and general business of Coos Bay a hundred fold. The incorporators of one of the companies are all connected with Portland. Among them are H. W. Scott, A. P. Dennison, C. H. Fitch, E. F. Russell and J. N. Dolph. The capital is placed at $1,200,000. The building of the canal would cost $500,000 at least. The Government has consented to order a survey of the intended course of the canal, at the same time that the mouth of the river is to be examined and reported on by Major Robert. The incorporators will be able to bring strong influences to bear on Congress and the Senate for a liberal land grant or subsidy of some kind. They are in earnest, mean business, and move promptly. They will most likely be successful.

The other incorporated company for the same object, are gentlemen connected with Empire City, on Coos Bay. Among the members are F. G. Lockhart, J. C. Haynes and Geo. Pratt. The capital of this company is stated to be $500,000 in $100 shares. The incorporators speak confidently of succeeding, and that they have conditionally purchased Judge Hall's horse railroad that connects the Isthmus and Beaver Sloughs, that is the key to the pass where the canal must be cut, if built. It is said that the former company are working for a large subsidy, and the latter company are operating for a good price to give up their opposition, or to be taken in with them. What is as likely to take place as the cutting a ship canal, is the

BUILDING OF A RAILROAD

By the Northern Pacific Coal Company, of San Francisco. They have secured 1,600 acres of as good coal beds as are connected with Coos Bay. The company will have to build a railroad from their mine to the deep waters of the Isthmus Slough, about three miles long. They intend continuing it to the Coquille river, three miles more, with the view of having a regular freight and passenger railroad, six miles long, that will meet all the wants of the freight and passenger traffic of the Coquille valley and their own coal mines. A narrow gauge, single track railroad could be built for $10,000 a mile, $60,000 for the whole line, or $80,000 at the outside. This road could be built in less than six months. If properly constructed and well managed for developing the material interests of the country, it would be as profitable an investment as on the Pacific coast. The almost inexhaustible forests of the finest of timber on the banks of the Coquille river, the vast agricultural resources of the Coquille valley that will come up like magic as soon as an open market is secured, the numerous flocks of fine sheep and herds of splendid cattle that are raised and that can be multiplied many fold on the rich grasses in the valley of the main river, its forks, numerous branches and the table lands of the South Fork. These productions added to the coal mines on the divide between the two sloughs will give freight for twenty trains a day. The value of such a railroad to the Company, to the Coquille river valley and to Coos Bay could not be easily estimated or much overvalued. If the road is run in the interest of a company of monopolists alone, the coal company would be greatly benefited, but the road for general freighting and passenger traffic would be a failure from the start. A canal would be a great advantage in the present state of the country, but a railroad would be decidedly preferred by the community.

A day spent in examining the coal beds in the Blue mountains, and another day in exploring the fruits of the same, reveal a supply of coal equal to the wants of the coast for a century and as fine yellow and red fir as ever was cut by the woodman's ax, that will yield supplies for lumbering and the saw mills of Coos Bay for the next fifty years. Many of these firs are from 250 to 300 feet high, from 25 to 30 feet in circumference and not a limb on them for 200 feet from the base. It is remarkable that the largest and finest of these firs and very rich and productive soil are on the face and top of this and other mountains in the same range. When cleared it will raise excellent grass and make fine grazing for sheep and cattle. Six miles across this Blue mountain range bring the traveler to

COQUILLE CITY,

Located on the north branch of the Coquille river. The site of this little town is lately laid out by Mr. T. B. Willard, the proprietor. The location is very attractive; it commands a beautiful view of the river and the surrounding country. It is a favorable center for trade. Mr. J. T. Moulton has a good general store, and does a considerable business, which is constantly increasing. Mr. M. W. Miller, formerly of Lebanon, in Linn county, who had to leave for bad health, has built a comfortable hotel, which he knows how to keep, and his wife how to provide an excellent table. His health is greatly improved, is in good spirits and generally prosperous.

This point strikes the Coquille river 28 miles from its mouth, and establishes in the mind of the most casual observer the importance of the river as a highway for internal navigation, its banks as invaluable for agricultural productions, and its forests for the choicest lumber, which further examination will, no doubt, amply confirm.

NORTHWEST.

JUDICIAL IRONY.—A London correspondent tells the following anecdote. The following story is told in the inns of court. The late Chief Justice Maule had brought before him a poor sailor charged with bigamy. The sailor pleaded guilty, and, on being asked if he had anything to say why the usual sentence should not be passed, said "May it please your lordship, my wife ran away with another man, and left me with a family of children whom my duties as a British sailor hardly enabled me to take care of without another wife. What ought I to have done?" "Prisoner," said his Lordship, sternly, "I will tell you what you ought to have done: you ought to have employed a posse of policemen to pursue that eloping wife and to have established a case of crim. con. against her, you ought then to have gone up to the House of Lords and secured from their Lordships a divorce, and then married again. You may say such a procedure would have cost you five or six hundred pounds, whereas you have not so many pence. But, sir, that makes no difference. It is my business, sitting here as an English judge, to inform you that this is not a country where there is one law for the rich and another for the poor." The story represents a bit of the irony under which the costly machinery of the lords court in such cases made way for the divorce court.

PATRICIDE AND SUICIDE.—Fred. Bookes, living in Decatur, Illinois, went home one evening lately after a three days' debauch, and was invited to take a seat at the supper table by his mother, whereupon he commenced abusing her with vile language. His father remonstrated, and told him he must cease or leave the house, at which he drew a revolver and shot his father in the face, inflicting an ugly but not dangerous wound. He then fired a ball into his own brain. At last accounts he was in a dying condition.

CITY.

SMALL POX RUMORS.—Our city was somewhat excited yesterday over the report that several cases of small pox had been found in the corporate limits. Now, we propose to give the public the benefit of all the information we could gather on the subject by consultation with the Health Officer of the city and others, in regard to the affair. Yesterday morning it was discovered that a Chinaman had died in a house on Taylor street between Front and First, of what is supposed to have been this loathsome disease. Mr. Lower, a fruit dealer and commission merchant, doing at the foot of Taylor street, is also ill with it, and is not likely to recover, as some gross [illegible] has been manifestly used in the way in which he has been treated. His physician, [illegible], made no report of the case until it was [illegible] by others and pronounced small pox, and then the so called doctor reported it to the Chief of Police as a case of "black measles as [illegible] with varioloid." Mr. Lower himself can not tell in what manner or when he contracted the disease.

There are two Chinamen sick in the city with some disease, which it is thought may develop into small pox, but which has not yet reached that stage which it can be fully determined.

Other than the above, we have learned that there are no cases now in the city, and the assurance is given that every measure to prevent the spread of the disease has been taken by the authorities. The Health and Police Committee of the Common Council and the Chief of Police have taken [illegible] pains to gather information on the subject and will use all possible means for the protection of the public.

DROPPED DEAD.—Thomas Hartness, a young man aged about 23 years, dropped dead last evening at the corner of Third and Morrison streets, about 11:30. He had been complaining for some time, but nothing serious was thought of his [illegible]. Last evening, while standing on the [illegible], he was observed to suddenly fall on his face. Persons who saw him fall, ran to the spot. [illegible] was flowing profusely from his nostrils and [illegible]. Scarcely a moment had elapsed, but the [illegible] had forever fled. The alarm was given and the remains were placed in an express wagon and conveyed with all haste to the corner of [illegible] and First streets, and Dr. Strong [illegible]. He carefully examined the body and [illegible] life extinct. Subsequently, the body [illegible] to the undertaker's, where it will [illegible] till after the inquest is held. The most [illegible] of Hartness' death is heart disease [illegible] hemorrhage caused by the rupture [illegible]. Hartness was a saddler by [illegible], a steady, industrious young man, [illegible] and confidence of all who [illegible]. He has resided for years in Portland, and [illegible] that time has won many friends. He has [illegible] and a mother residing in the city, who will be terribly shocked by the intelligence of his sudden and unexpected death. Young Hartness was a member of the Washington Guard for a number of years. The inquest will be held over the remains this morning.

NOT AN IMPOSTOR.—We have subsequently learned that the article of Mr. Duncan Campbell [illegible] appeared in both the morning papers [illegible] that he was an impostor, is [illegible]. Several persons in this city are well acquainted with Campbell; have known him in [illegible], and are [illegible] with the real facts as to his [illegible]. His friends in Portland [illegible] that he has [illegible] misrepresentations as to his [illegible]. He was [illegible] an object of charity. A sum of [illegible] to enable him to return to Canada has been given him by his friends here, and he will [illegible] his departure in a few days. Campbell is a Scotchman by birth, and has long resided in Canada, where his family are at present. Our statement was made on the authority of several reliable gentlemen; but we cheerfully [illegible] this correction in justice to the party injured.

ST. HELEN'S HALL.—The following will be the order of exercises at this institution to-day:

[illegible] Forenoon.—9 o'clock. Junior Class A, Geography.
[illegible] Senior Class A, Grammar.
[illegible] Senior Class C, Botany.
[illegible] Senior Class B and C, Ancient History.

DIRECTORS' MEETING.—A meeting of the Board of Directors of the public schools was held last Monday evening. Present—J. C. [illegible], J. S. Giltner, J. G. Glenn, and R. J. [illegible] Clerk. Bids were opened for the [illegible] of the new Central School [illegible]. There were seven sealed proposals [illegible]. Thomas McKay being the lowest [illegible] $1,610—was awarded the contract. Some [illegible] were also ordered in the general man[illegible] of the school building. It was decided [illegible] the election for teachers on the 30th inst. [illegible] for the general government of the schools [illegible] and laid on the table. The Board then [illegible] until June 30th at 7:30 P. M.

SUPERIOR CLAY.—Mr. Gideon Tibbetts has laid [illegible] table some specimen bricks manufactured [illegible] the yard adjacent the Brooklyn Mills. The clay from which these bricks are made appears [illegible] of a superior quality, possessing all the elements of strength, toughness and durability. The bricks preserve the angles at the corners [illegible] with remarkable acuteness, and when [illegible] sharply together ring like steel. After [illegible] well burned, each brick weighs on an average [illegible] pounds and three ounces. For all practical [illegible] requirements these bricks are un[illegible]

[illegible].—A small but very highly prized dog [illegible] Capt. B. F. Smith, was accidentally [illegible]day by a large truck on Flanders' [illegible] instantly killed. The truck was standing [illegible] the dog had laid down immediately [illegible] of the hind wheels and fell asleep. [illegible] stepped forward and the wheel [illegible] loaded truck passed directly over [illegible] the dog, nearly severing it in twain. [illegible] was highly valued by the owner, [illegible] not have taken a round hundred dollars [illegible] for its life.

[illegible] OFFICE.—The several officers elected [illegible] municipal election have all filed with [illegible] and Clerk their respective oaths of office. No bonds are required to be filed except by the City Treasurer, which is fixed at $75,000. [illegible], the Treasurer elect, will probably file his [illegible] to-day. As prescribed by law, all [illegible] required to enter upon the duties and [illegible] of the respective offices to which [illegible] been elected, on the tenth day after [illegible], which will be to-morrow.

[illegible].—A horse attached to a dump cart [illegible] yesterday afternoon near Clarendon [illegible] in Couch's Lake. The cart was loaded [illegible] the driver foolishly backed the animal into the water to enable him to dump his load with ease. The bank was very steep at that [illegible], as a consequence, the cart dragged the [illegible] under the water and it was drowned. [illegible], who was seated on the cart, narrowly [illegible] drowning, and only made his escape to [illegible] by swimming.

[illegible] OF TEACHERS.—A public examination (as provided by law,) of applicants for [illegible] as teachers in Multnomah county, will be held in the Central school house, Portland, [illegible]day, June 28th, from 9 A. M. to 12 M. and from 1 to 4 P. M. Applicants will provide their own writing material, and be on hand [illegible] at the morning hour. The Superintendent will be assisted by Messrs. W. W. Froman and S. F. Bennett as a Board of Examiners.

FORWARD ARRIVED.—The bark Forward, Capt. [illegible], arrived at port last evening with a large [illegible] of passengers and a full assorted cargo of [illegible] merchandise. This vessel came direct from Hongkong. As she came too late to land all the passengers, the vessel came to anchor in the stream opposite Flanders' wharf. The passengers will be allowed to land to day.

OFF FOR SITKA.—The Oregon Steamship Company's new steamer California sailed away last evening for Sitka and intermediate ports. She carried [illegible] a few passengers and a large freight.

[illegible] OFF.—For several days past the grav[illegible] on the west side has not been running. We learn that it has been temporarily hauled off [illegible] same reason.

FROM THE DALLES.—Mr. John Holland, chief boat builder of the O. S. N. Co., arrived in the city from the Dalles on Monday evening. Having superintended the finishing touches to the steamer Daisy Ainsworth, Mr. Holland came down to supervise the repairs on the Annie Stewart.

FOR PERJURY.—Miss Georgia Kayton, one of the well known nymphs du pave of the city, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of perjury. She gave the required bonds for her appearance this morning, when the case will come up for examination in the Police Court.

FOR ST. HELENS.—The schooner Margaret Crockard has completed discharging her cargo at Flanders' wharf, and was taken in tow of the Varuna last evening for St. Helens. Lumber for San Francisco will constitute the return cargo of this schooner.

ARRIVED.—The barkentine W[illegible] from San Francisco with a large assorted cargo, arrived at port late on Monday evening in tow of the Varuna. She is discharging cargo at Flanders' wharf.

SAILED FOR TILLAMOOK.—The little schooner Katie Heron having completed her cargo for Tillamook, sailed down the river yesterday.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Crellin, a well known merchant of Oysterville, is in the city.

Hon. W. W. Bristow, of Lane county, is in the city and favored us with a call last evening.

Hon. A. J. Dufur, accompanied by his wife, will leave the city this morning for an extended tour in the "rural districts" in quest of health. They will probably be absent two months.

"SHOVE YOUR TEETH INTO THAT!"—There is a boy in our schools who wears a green velvet suit which is broken out with bell-buttons. There is a great change in the boy since he commenced to go to school, several months ago. He was then but a trifle better than an untutored savage, although we frankly confess we don't know what an untutored savage is. His first experience in the school was a spelling lesson. While the class was going through the exercise, he sat on the platform near the teacher, and locked his hands across his knees and watched the class very intently. The first was ransom. "By gracious!" said he, drawing his breath hard. The teacher gave him a reproving look, and went on. Multiply. "Thunder and lightning, what a word!" he cried, in a storm of delight. Again the teacher nailed him with a look, and proceeded. Osculation. At this he just raised himself up to his feet, and shrieked out in a perfect frenzy of ecstasy, "By godeys, gentlemen, gentlemen, just shove your teeth into that!" This broke up the lesson.

THE CHARMING LULU.—A N. Y. correspondent writes: Down at Niblo's there's a pantomime and the surprising gymnastic feats of "Lulu," a very prettily-formed little fellow, who is supposed by the world to be a young lady. This is the same athlete who went all over Europe a year or so ago with his father, Signor Ferreati. He's a better exponent of women's parts than Zoyara, who rode here years ago. That young man (Omar Kingsley) lived in Jim Nixon's family, traveled the streets in light silk dresses with Nixon's daughters, "smashed" New York youths—even fascinated old people. Didn't Barney Williams give her a diamond bracelet? For six months you were laughed at if you said she was a he. But finally, when Ella ran off and was married to Sallie Stickney, and went to housekeeping, and not only bought a cradle, but had occasion to rock it, the victims of misplaced confidence looked back on bouquets and jewelry with regret. Lulu is a nice little gentleman, who, instead of "painting birds," and doing beautiful needle work, as some of the papers elaborately set forth, rebels against the petticoat government, and says "The old man hasn't got but a year more of this 'Lulu' business. I ain't near as pretty as I was, and I'm getting uglier every day."

Don't go about with shabby clothes while an opportunity is afforded you to obtain wearing apparel at only a nominal sum. You miss a splendid chance to get a suit of clothing cheap when you fail to call on J. Kohn & Co. 91 Front street, where the counters are crowded with the very latest styles. Twenty dollars will buy a fine outfit there.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

EXAMINATION AND INTERESTING COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT THIS INSTITUTION.

Yesterday the annual examination and commencement exercises at the St. Mary's Academy took place at that institution in the presence of a large number of parents, patrons and friends. During the forenoon, the examination came off in the chapel of the Academy. Miss Aphia Dimick being the only young lady who had completed the prescribed course of studies, was examined yesterday in all the various branches taught at the Academy. This young lady, although subjected to a careful and rigid examination, stood the test beyond the sanguine anticipations of her many friends. She acquitted herself with much credit, winning the admiration of her fellow pupils and friends, and the warmest encomiums of her teachers. Interspersed was a number of vocal and instrumental selections. The following order of exercises was observed during

YESTERDAY FORENOON.

The first exercise was an introductory overture (Tancredi de Rossini) performed by nine young ladies, as follows: Misses Julia Richardson, Gussie Wasserman, Fannie Case, Mary Hennessy, Mary O'Brien, Virginia McDermott, Katie Arpin, Emma O'Connor and Nellie Kearney. This selection was rendered with very excellent effect, indicative of much painstaking and practice, on the part of the performers. An "Introductory Address" was next delivered in a creditable manner by Miss Mary O'Brien. Miss Dimick, the graduate, was then examined in Chemistry and Philosophy, and evinced much proficiency in these branches. A solo and chorus was rendered entitled "Return of Summer," by the singing school. This was followed by an examination of Miss Dimick in versification, in which branch she showed herself an adept. "Fantasia" (Kinkel), an instrumental solo, was rendered superbly by Misses Nellie Kearney, Julia Richardson and Gussie Wasserman, and was followed by a thorough examination of Miss Dimick in geometry and trigonometry. In these difficult and advanced branches of mathematics, the pupil acquitted herself in a highly satisfactory manner. "Charity," a solo and chorus, was next rendered by the singing school. Then came an examination of Miss Dimick again in logic and astronomy, and followed by "Sweet Reverie" (Bissel), instrumental, performed by Misses Nellie Kearney, Matilda Raleigh, Katie Arpin, Mollie McCormick, Julia Richardson, Fannie Case, Mary Hennessy, Gussie Wasserman and Augusta Funk. Examinations in the studies of algebra and botany followed the last performance. The singing school rendered with good effect the solo and chorus, "Angels' Serenade." The concluding examination exercises of Miss Dimick in geology and natural history came next. As a finale to the exercises of the forenoon, "Germania's Favorite March" (Hummel), was performed by Misses Mary Harrington, Mary Chappelier, Julia Richardson, Constance Pendergast, Joanna Harrington and Sophia Sels.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The commencement or closing exercises took place yesterday afternoon. To accommodate the large number of persons to whom had been issued tickets, the exercises were held in the Orphanage, a commodious building situated on the block immediately west of the Academy. At precisely 2 o'clock the door was opened and several hundred persons who were the fortunate possessors of tickets were admitted, until almost every available seat in the hall was occupied. About ten minutes after the assemblage were seated, the interesting exercises commenced. The first was the "Grand Opening March" (des Tambours), performed on three pianos by Misses Matilda Raleigh, Aphia Dimick, Mary O'Brien, Gussie Wasserman, Julia Richardson and Rosa Jacobs. Miss Dimick then modestly stepped forward on the rostrum and delivered the salutatory, which, at its conclusion, was warmly applauded. Hummel's "Favorite Home Polka" was then rendered in its most entrancing style by Misses Nellie Kearney, Tillie Washer, Emma Mills, Belle Hamburger, Annie McGinn and Mary Whalley. Immediately following this came a vocal trio, "The Singing Lesson," by Misses Fannie Case, Julia Richardson and Nellie Kearney. An original essay, "Twilight Musings," was read by Miss Dimick. This production was characteristic for its originality and many beautiful gems of thought. The essay was read in a clear and distinct manner, showing unmistakably that the young lady's elocutionary education had not been neglected. The "Last Rose of Summer," arranged by Wyman, was sweetly performed on the piano by Misses Rosa Jacobs, Matilda Raleigh and Julia Richardson. By special request Miss C. Neely recited the beautiful poem entitled "Remembrance," in good taste and with considerable dramatic power and effect. The recitation won for the young lady a round of merited applause. Grobe's "Fantasie" was executed on three pianos by Misses Nellie Ryan, Edith Nelson, Louisa Pumphrey, Henrietta Waldman, Jeannette Young and Rosa Norton in a style eliciting much applause. Conferring of Diplomas and gold medal on Miss Dimick followed, by the Mother Superioress of the Academy. A very beautiful solo and chorus was then sung by the School, entitled the "Laurels We Have Won." Distribution of prizes to every scholar present was the next order of exercises and consumed about half an hour. "Laudate Dominum," (Lamb Hatte) in the vocal rendering of which the entire school joined, followed. A poetical colloquy, the "Fount of Knowledge," was next recited by the following young ladies: Aphia Dimick, Mary Hickey, Bertha Mayer, Virginia McDermott, C. Kohn, C. Neely, Julia Richardson, Mary O'Brien, Rosa Jacobs, Maggie Nyham, Ellen Raleigh, Matilda Raleigh and Mary Harrington. Miss Dimick then came forward and delivered the valedictory. Several times during this part of the exercises this young lady became so deeply affected that she almost completely broke down. Rarely have we ever witnessed a more affecting scene. The tears of the pupils and the teachers flowed profusely as each were addressed in the endearing, affectionate tones of friendship, by the dear companion and pupil, as with tremulous voice and moistened eyelids she repeated the word "Farewell." Many persons in the large audience were visibly moved at the affecting scene, and but few eyes were tearless. At the conclusion of the valedictory, the beautiful solo and chorus "Farewell," was sung. The chorus was sung by the whole school, and the solos by Misses Nellie Kearney, Julia Richardson, Fannie Case, Katie Arpin and Aphia Dimick. In conclusion a grand "Overture" was performed by Misses Julia Richardson, Gussie Wasserman, Fannie Case, Mary Hennessy, Mary O'Brien, Virginia McDermott, Katie Arpin, Emma O'Connor and Nellie Kearney.

Cordial thanks were then returned the audience for their attendance and strict decorum, and the pleasant and interesting exercises were at an end.

A MORAL DEDUCTION.—Susan Eberhart, a girl only nineteen years of age, was hanged at Preston, Webster county, Georgia, on the 2d of May, for being accessory to the murder of Mrs. Spann, which was committed by Spann, the husband. In her confession she says that she did nothing except being present, and, under compulsion, handing Spann a handkerchief when he called for it, to fill his wife's mouth. Alluding to this case, by way of contrast or parallel to that of Stokes, the Chicago Inter-Ocean indulges in the following reverie:

In the New York Tombs, to day, lounges a man bred in the lap of fashion, educated to know that murder is the foulest crime against the laws of God and man, who, in broad daylight, without apparent provocation, shot down a fellow man, and since that time has carried himself as if he had done a noble deed. In one section of the country, a poor, ignorant girl, in whose breast the milk of human kindness could certainly not yet have turned to marble, is hung; in another, a man, because he has wealth and friends, and lives within the jurisdiction of a legal code which seems to cherish a sentimental tenderness toward the blackest villian, is allowed to revel in prison luxury, and for the unprecedented period of one year and a half to cheat the gallows of its own.

"I say, Tom, that is a nobby suit you have on. I declare I've been trying to get something that will fit me to a dot, and that I can depend on to wear well. Where did you buy them?" "I was passing along First street, last week, and as I turned the corner of Washington street I noticed some fine cloths and furnishing goods. The attraction was so great that I stopped inside, and after selecting the materials, I ordered what may be termed an elegant fitting suit. The place is Fishel & Roberts."

If you want pure liquors of any kind go to E. D. Tyner's, northeast corner of Oak and First streets, agent for the sale of Jessie Moore & Co.'s fine Old Bourbon and Rye Whiskies of Louisville, Ky.

The public mind has been somewhat agitated with the Modoc war, an occasional marine or railway disaster, and the dull times, and the prospect of buying clothing at a figure not large enough to clean a man to the bedrock. The place has been found where you can buy men and boy's clothing or gentlemen's furnishing goods, at the very lowest prices. It is at Beck & Waldman's, corner of Front and Washington street, where a full assortment of men and boys clothing in the latest styles can be selected from.

The Agassiz School.

The New York Evening Post publishes the annexed letter to Prof. Agassiz, which plainly foreshadows the beneficent results of the munificent gift of Mr. Anderson.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
WARRENSBURG, Mo., May 29, 1873.

Professor Louis Agassiz—Dear Sir: Our schools in this State are in a formative condition, and are now so plastic that they can be made to take almost any form impressed upon them. The leading educational men in the State, including the State Superintendent, are determined that something better and more rational shall take the place of the old rote system—that the memorizing of words and the study of formulas shall give place to the investigations of nature as far as possible. They believe that science lies at the very basis of an educational work, and they wish to have the assistance of teachers qualified to make their ideal a great reality. We consider the opportunity offered by the school you are opening as our opportunity, and we ask you to strain a point to accommodate our teachers, who now hold in their hands the educational future of the State.

They are so intent on going that they are willing to live in tents or to rough it in any way to obtain a place. If your seats are full they will sit upon the sand rather than be denied the great privilege of attending the school. Truly yours,

JAMES JOHONNET.

Anderson, it will be remembered, has given the island in Narragansett Bay, a completely furnished residence, and $50,000 for this school. We are requested to state that he now suggests, to make the endowment ample and the Institution a national one, that the Legislatures of the States shall contribute $25,000 each to the fund. We question whether this can be done constitutionally; but there should certainly be found some wealthy men in all the States who will emulate the generosity of Anderson, and endow the school with sufficient means to make it pre-eminent among scientific institutions.

AUTHORSHIP.—What are we now to think of these now frequent disputes about rightful authorship of popular poems? How is it possible for any one of recognized respectability to openly and persistently claim to be the author of a production which he never wrote, when, if discovered in the fraud, he would be excluded from all social recognition, and deserve a residence in the State Prison? And yet in this "Betsy and I Are Out"—the latest of the disputed authorship issues—one of two people is in this predicament. If Mrs. Emerson tells the truth, what an unconscionable scoundrel Mr. Carleton must be! If Mr. Carleton is truthful, what barefaced swindling can go beyond Mrs. Emerson's brazen defiance of morality! It is difficult to believe that either can be in this position. A suspicion is excited by the frequency of these disputed claims that they are manufactured as excellent modes of advertising. It would take a fortune to advertise a poem in a legitimate manner as extensively as "Beautiful Snow" and "Betsy and I Are Out" have been, if any extent of ordinary advertising would bring a literary production into such general notice. If the people are not gulled by made up disputes in these matters, the circumstances at least have that suspicious seeming.

An English correspondent gives a graphic account of the late demonstration in favor of manhood suffrage, made on Newcastle Moor, England, by 60,000 coal-workers. To say that 200,000 persons took part in the proceedings, that sixty brass bands were in the line of march, and that more than thirty special trains were required on the railways, only faintly pictures the great features of the occasion. The demonstration was orderly, peaceful and manly. Better still, the proprietors and authorities gave countenance and sympathy to the affair; and the result was that the vast army of laborers proved that their purpose is not disorder.

Coughs and colds are often overlooked; a continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the lungs, or some chronic throat disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual Cough Remedy.

You cannot afford to neglect a cold. It will fasten its iron hand upon the strongest constitution, unless attended to in time. Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry will cure it in every change, from the early cough to consumption itself.

It is impossible to ignore those terrible nameless diseases that annually sweep so many hapless victims into the grave. We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. Helmbold's Buchu stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

If Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is half as valuable as people say it is, no family should be without it. Certainly no person, be he lawyer, doctor, minister, or of any other profession should start on a journey without it. No sailor, fisherman or woodsman should be without it. In fact, it is needed wherever there is an ache, sprain, cut, bruise, cough or cold.

Farmers and "Horse Men" are continually inquiring what we know of the utility of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, and in reply we would say, through the columns of the OREGONIAN, that we have heard from hundreds who have used them with gratifying results, that is also our experience.

A Reinforcement Demanded

When the system begins to wilt under the effects of the first "heated term" it is obvious that it ought to be reinforced and sustained by wholesome stimulation. To resort to the adulterated liquors of commerce in such a crisis, as too many do, is the hight of infatuated folly. All such fiery stimulants have a sting. After the first effect has passed away, that sting is felt. The reaction is terrible. The prostration of body and mind which ensues is more complete than before. But the operation of a medical tonic like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which extracts of the rarest remedial herbs and roots are blended with the spirituous essence of rye, pure and undefiled, is very different. No unpleasant reaction follows its use. It is a permanent, a perpetual invigorant, and there is no phase of debility, indigestion, biliousness, nervousness or intermittent fever, which it will not speedily recover.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr. J. S. Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medicinal qualities of the Eucalyptus, which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medicinal utility, having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO-URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings, and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes, such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHŒA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr. Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U. S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco, in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy, and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the anticipated results, and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office, 405 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful, yet harmless febrifuge, and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys, and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions, while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies for those diseases are entirely avoided.

FOR PHYSICIANS, Coleman's Fluid Extract of Eucalyptus in 1 lb bottles.

Major General George Crook.

THE GREAT INDIAN FIGHTER—HIS MANAGEMENT OF THE SAVAGES—SECRET OF HIS UNIVERSAL SUCCESS.

From the New York Daily Graphic

The peace declared in Arizona naturally directs general attention to that long distracted country, and the Modoc sensation of the hour will cause comparatively everybody to be interested in anything truthful concerning the prince of regular army Indian fighters—Gen Crook, Lieutenant Colonel of the Twenty-third Infantry. He was born near Dayton, Ohio, graduated at West Point in the class with Sheridan, Lieutenant Derby ("John Phœnix") and other notables. Crook was sent direct from West Point to the Pit river and Modoc Indian country in 1851. Instead of idling away his time on dress parade tactics he set about hunting the haunts and habits of the savages, and fighting them on every occasion, frequently whipping them by the hundreds with his half company, armed with old fashioned weapons. He would do his own scouting on foot and often alone. He is one of the best shots with the rifle in the world, is very fond of hunting, fishing and all out-door exercise, is personally as brave as men can be, yet as cool under the excitement of war as the occasion would demand. In his battles with Indians he will take a full hand, almost invariably, as any soldier he may direct, and has made many an Indian bite the dust. He fought in the different Indian wars of the far Northwest until the rebellion, when, through more than a hundred battles thereof, he worked his way up to a Major-Generalship. After the great war, he was singled out by Grant and Halleck to conduct the war against the savages of Southern Idaho and Oregon and Northern Nevada and California. He concluded a peace round that great circle after the manner of his late arrangement in Arizona. In getting General Crook placed in command of that Department, it is due President Grant, in view of the amount of senseless bosh printed now-a-days against the peace policy, to state that he had to take the matter into his own hands, and put General Crook there on his brevet rank. This was a sort of snub to the regular army, and a favor duly appreciated by the outraged citizens of Arizona, where red tape and rascality had ruled for many a year.

General Crook's fighting policy is this—a Napoleonic and natural one too—make one part of the enemy fight the other. Organize the hostile savages into bands of the most successful scouts, and strike the remaining "hostiles" at home "in a way they despised." Crook will capture a "hostile," and with the offer of good food, clothes, gun, horse, etc., in addition to authority, will buy him into turning against his own household. This is the grand secret of Crook's universal success. His plan is deadly as fate. As a man to manage the savages, either in war or peace, he is head and shoulders above all other officers, peace or military. His heart is in the right place—a man disposed, by nature, to do exact justice, regardless of race or condition. He is as tender hearted as a child and as fond of fun, and in every way (except debauchery) the life of the camp. He likes to have young, lively, witty men always around him, and generally arranges his staff accordingly. Physically he is as tough as a mule, and can "wear-out" half the young men of twenty-five. Crook is scarcely forty-five years of age; married, but has no children. His wife keeps on his trail pretty closely. In complexion, Crook is light-haired—almost white; nose and mouth indicating strength of character, purpose, etc. He fully earned the star of a brigadier in the service years ago, and advices from Washington indicate that tardy justice is at last to be meted out to this singularly successful and extremely modest man.

A correspondent writing recently from Prescott, Arizona, gives an interesting account of the signing of the treaty of peace at Camp Bede on April 6. The General had no beads or trinkets to be distributed. He told the Indians: "If you come here for another fraudulent peace, we will have nothing to do with you." Schulzer Pan, speaking for the red skins, quickly replied—"We are ripe for a genuine peace—peace in earnest." After another chief had spoken in the same strain, General Crook came in for his speech. He began by pointing to his "boys in blue," both white and Apaches, who had thrashed them into their humility, and taught them through suffering the better part. He told them the soldiers could have hurt them much more than they had done, could have killed many more redskins, if mercy had not formed a part of the father's plan, who from Washington had directed him to let the Apaches have one more chance to act like human beings and not like fiends.

To this Schulzer Pan made a quiet answer, charging God with having made the Indian heart bad, for which he blamed no one but God himself; but now that Crook had forced them into this, to them, humiliating position, they were willing to accept and do as he (Crook) desired.

General Crook then assured the Indians that the bad whites, whose existence he fully acknowledged, should not be permitted to impose upon them. "You, too," he said, "then must prepare for self-government by putting down the unruly among you. You must raise horses, cattle and other useful animals, that you may be possessed of rights of citizenship."

A Dog Chases a Railroad Train for Fourteen Miles

[From the St. Paul Press, June 7th.]

Wednesday last was "a good day for the race"—the canine race referred to—as the following true tale of a Minnesota dog, related by a reliable eye-witness, shall prove. On that day as one of the trains on the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad stopped at Centerville, a few miles beyond White Bear Lake, a lady took a seat in one of the passenger coaches and the train started. When it stopped at White Bear Station a dog of medium size, and [illegible] a shaggy coat, came alongside upon the platform, and was noticed to be very warm and panting heavily; again, a few miles further on, Bond called the attention of some of the passengers to the fact that that dog had followed them from White Bear Lake, as he supposed. The train was again off, and shortly doggy was seen close behind. Passengers became interested, and crowded to the rear of the car to see the race. Occasionally at some pool behind the track, doggy would dash down, take a few drops of the cooling fluid, varying this sometimes with a bath, and then, with a sharp yelp or two, as if in pain at the idea of being left behind, dash on. In this way an even race was maintained until a down grade was reached, when the train made a long, swift dash to gain impetus for a rising grade beyond. Doggy now fell behind, he tried hard, but it was too much for him, his little body was, however, just full of pluck and perseverence, and to the delight of the passengers, whose sympathy was fully aroused for the canine hero, when the up grade was reached doggy made good his loss and caught up with the train. Conductor Bond said that he would stop and take up the weary runner, now showing signs of exhaustion, but there was no one to take care of him or to deliver him to at the journey's end. By this time the lady passenger from Centerville became interested to know what it was which so excited the passengers, and as she saw the little racer, she immediately recognized him as the pet of the friends with whom she had been visiting at Centerville. He had followed her to the depot, and gallantly attended her on foot on her journey, until within four miles of St. Paul. Conductor Bond seized the bell rope, the train was quickly stopped, and doggy was taken on board, where he was given first-class quarters and a free ride, which he had amply earned, by fairly running a fourteen mile race with a passenger train making its usual time. It is needless to add that doggy was as delighted as his weary little body would allow, to regain sight of the friend he had followed, and that he was the hero of the hour with all on board the train.

Professor Huber, the [illegible] of the Œcumenical Council and author of a History of the Jesuits, is coming to this country to lecture on Jesuitism during the coming winter. Dr Huber is professor of philosophy in the University of Munich and has written a book on "Darwinism," in which he believes no more than he does in infallibility. He is one of the sharpest of disputants and will be well worth hearing.

The Tonnage Question.

Our prospects for tonnage to market the surplus grain crop of this year are not flattering. One year ago there were several grain ships disengaged at San Francisco, and freights to the United Kingdom were ruling at £4 per ton. "Now," says an exchange of the 10th inst., "tonnage is very scarce, only one disengaged ship in port, and she held far above present ruling rates. From the following data, it will be seen that several vessels have been secured during the week at rates showing a considerable rise for the month. This great advance in freights was brought about by the action of a few farmers holding over large quantities of Wheat, and which at one time could have been sold at 2c ℔ ℔; but the price suddenly dropping to 1¾c, they were unwilling sellers, and then they were offered freight at £3 10s; but hoping for still lower freights, they held back for a day or two, when all at once they became alarmed at the situation, and suddenly went off and secured the freight at £4 5s@£4 10s, and now that the farmers' rush is over for shipping upon their own account, business again becomes slack. It is generally believed that 75 or 80 ships, to arrive, have already been chartered for the new crop at £4 and upward. At this writing, we hear of but one opinion as to the future, and that is that our surplus grain crop will be large, reaching 400,000 tons and upwards, and the fear is now expressed that we will not have tonnage sufficient within the next twelve months to carry it to market. With this view of the situation, we feel confident that high freights are to rule for many months to come."

Looking at these facts and reflecting that but few, not one tenth of the number of vessels required to carry Oregon's surplus, are yet known to be under engagement to load here, we confess to some feelings of discouragement at the outlook. If the product of our State shall equal present probabilities, the requirement will not be for less than 100 ships of 1,000 tons each, and at present we know of less than one-fourth that number likely to come here this year, freights in almost all other parts of the world, as well as on this coast being high proportionately and the demand for tonnage exceeding the supply.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The demand is fair, and buyers to supply immediate wants are free at current rates. Transactions, however, are limited to small lots offered to close out parcels of the last year's product. Quotations are still furnished at $1 50 with the possibility of an advance of 2@5c ℔ cental for choice lots.

FLOUR—Trade is still quiet at $5 ℔ bbl for finest of established brands, $4 25@4 75 for common brands of Extra, $4 for fine, and $3 75 for superfine. For the latter the demand is hardly so active as earlier in the season. The supply in the hands of dealers is about up to the average of the year, which has not been large.

OATS—We note diminishing receipts, and a rather dull state of the trade. Jobbers report, however, some improvement in the home demand. But few more shipments of the old crop are likely to be made. Buyers here are paying 50c ℔ bushel sacked, but are indifferent purchasers.

HAY—New timothy has been received in small lots, but prices tempt but little. The current rates are unchanged since our last review.

FEED—The ruling quotations for shorts, middlings, etc., are $28@30 weak; for bran, firmer at $18@20 per ton.

POTATOES—New Oregon are coming to hand more liberally and prices are drooping. Lots sell from wagons at two cents per pound. Old are in fair request at 50 cents per bushel.

BACON—We quote good quality of country cured hams at 12@13½ cents per pound, sides 10@11½ cents and shoulders 8@9 cents. The supply on hand is abundant enough to satisfy all present demand.

BUTTER—The receipts of the past few days have fallen off slightly, but still the local demand is well supplied, with no urgent call for shipping. Quotations for a good article are furnished at 16@20 cents per pound in larger lots.

EGGS—The market suffers no lack in the way of supply and shippers are indifferent buyers, as prices at San Francisco leave but the smallest margin on shipments hence. We quote at 15 cents per dozen.

HIDES—Shipments are noted as large and buyers are free at 6@7 cents per pound for green, 15 cents for dry. For many lots which are damaged sellers are compelled to make a considerable deduction.

WOOL—The demand is quite active, and prices more buoyant. We note increased receipts this week so far, and hear of purchases in the interior at an equivalent of 22½ cents per pound here. The ruling rate in San Francisco is too low for a standard for our growers, as the California product is admitted to be inferior to ours, as a general thing.

FLORENCE!

THE BEST SEWING MACHINE IN THE WORLD. It does more work, more kinds of work, better work, and does its work easier than any other machine.

If there is a FLORENCE within a thousand miles of Portland not giving entire satisfaction, if I am informed of it, I will attend to it without expense of any kind to the owner.

We have the new style of FLORENCE machine that feeds the work away from the operator (like the Howe or Singer) to meet the views of those preferring that style of Machine.

I have located permanently at Portland, and shall keep constantly on hand a large assortment of all of the latest styles of the Florence machines. Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

I have also the agency for the celebrated NONOTUCK CO SEWING SILK and TWIST, JOHN CLARK JR & CO'S SPOOL COTTON, WILLISTON S C & T MACHINE THREAD, BAILEY'S PARAFFINE SEWING MACHINE OIL.

Sold on the installment plan.

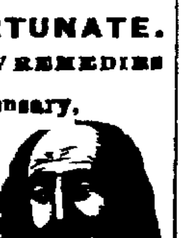
DR. C. G. GLASS

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated [illegible] successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his [illegible] may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of those horrible, life-destroying [illegible] that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate [illegible], without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and [illegible] places. Be then careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of [illegible].

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of insuring a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain [illegible] relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to a patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Post office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.

Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.
